

Cancer Survivor Fund

in honor of Rick Parker

Support cancer survivors in our community

Novant Health Rowan Medical Center Foundation launched the new Cancer Survivor Fund to honor Rick Parker. Because fighting cancer often creates financial strains for patients and families, the Cancer Survivor Fund will provide financial assistance to cancer patients receiving care at the Novant Health Wallace Cancer Institute. The fund will help these community members cover the cost of necessities such as housing, utilities, transportation and nutritional supplements.

Cancer care has a new home

Novant Health Wallace Cancer Institute is a 32,000-square-foot, state-of-the-art comprehensive cancer treatment center dedicated to providing Rowan County and surrounding community residents with life-giving care. The new facility, a department of Novant Health Rowan Medical Center, brings together cancer experts, leading-edge technology and resources designed for ensuring patient comfort and healing, all in one location.

A lifelong advocate for health

For 39 years, Rick Parker has played an integral role in supporting Novant Health's mission to deliver remarkable care throughout the communities we serve.

Throughout his tenure, Parker helped raise money for the first residential hospice facility in Rowan County and for 3D mammography to improve breast health services. One shining example of Parker's work has been the Novant Health Wallace Cancer Institute, which opened in 2020.

As Parker reflects on his time with Novant Health, he is grateful for the opportunity to serve his team members and our community.

"I'm forever grateful to Novant Health," Parker said. "I've really enjoyed becoming part of this remarkable healthcare team."
